. A document with the coin states (on the authority of Professor Ernst Herzfeld of Berlin) that it was found at Babylon in 1901, during the excavations of the Deutsche Orient-Gesellschaft, by some children of the workmen; that it was sold by the mother of one of them for £20 to an antiquary at Hillah, near Babylon, who afterwards sold it in Bagdad. This account of the coin was given to Professor Herzfeld some twelve years later by one Chaoul Selman, a native overseer of the excavations, who had seen the coin shortly after its discovery.
